by CLAUDE STUART HAMMOCK

An exposé of the clever schemes that swindle the American people out of millions of dollars yearly.

Mrs. Gordon lived alone in a four-room apartment on a quiet side street. She had asked the owner of the building to repaint the interior, but had almost give up hope of having it done when a man in paint-spattered overalls called to see her.

Int'l Harvester's Cotton Picker Gets Try-Out in State

Leaves Some Cotton in Field, and Picks Up Some Trash

BUT IT'S SUCCESS

East Arkansas Plantation Owners Likely to Buy Machine

HELENA, Ark.—After watching an International Harvester company mechanical cotton picker in operation Thursday at the Hutto plantation in Phillips county, farmers speculated here as to whether it would replace negro field hands.

The general opinion of farmers is that it is doing a good job, despite the handicap of rank, bale-to-an-acre cotton on the plantation where it is at work.

Although several Phillips county residents watched a demonstration at Clarksville, Miss., several weeks ago, this is the first time a mechanical picker has been tried out in Phillips county.

Principal objection to the machine is that it leaves some cotton on the ground. J. P. Swift, manager of the Hutto plantation, had a negro follow it and pick up the cotton dropped with a view to determining what per cent it leaves. This had not been announced Friday.

Sheriff Impressed
Sheriff F. F. Kitchens, who also operates a large farm, and who watched the picker, said that he would like to own one next year.

"It leaves some cotton, but not enough to matter," he said. "The cleaner also fails to remove all the trash but by the time the cotton goes through the gin, it will be in fair condition. I believe the machine is a success."

"Here to Stay," Says Planter
Tully Hopper, who with his brother, operates a plantation, said that he is thinking seriously of buying one for use next year.

"I am very much impressed with the machine's work, and I think it is here to stay," he said. "Of course I wouldn't want to buy one this late in the season, but I certainly would want one for next year rather than go through the trouble in getting pickers I have this year. I understand that the pickers are not being offered on the commercial market yet. But if they sell in the range of $1,500, I am planning to buy one. Of course I would want the company to agree to fit the machine with any improvements made in the next two or three years because I believe it will be improved greatly with in that time."

Under normal conditions the machine will pick around a bale of cotton an hour.

Rank Growth a Handicap
J. L. Barton, representative of the company, who is operating the machine, is somewhat handicapped by the fact that the cotton on the Hutto plantation is much taller than cotton in Texas where he has been operating the machine this fall. As he becomes more familiar with the rank cotton he hopes to do a better job.

For the picker to do best work it is necessary that the crop be cultivated with a tractor. This insures uniformity of rows and makes for more satisfactory results.

Sponsors of the machine have not announced a public demonstration, but it is reported it may be seen in operation on the plantation any day now when the weather is favorable for picking.

Britain's Girls Prefer to Work Like Factories and Shops Instead of Being House Maids

Like Factories and Shops Instead of Being House Maids

LONDON.—Scarcity of domestic servants has reached such grave proportions in the British Isles that the government itself is tackling the problem of finding household help for Mrs. John Bull.

Roly-poly, black-mustached Minister of Labor Ernest Brown is considering organization of a "league of good household mistresses" to attract more girls into servants' jobs. One London newspaper even credits him with a proposal of a mortgage dower for servant girls, but he denies that.

One reason why so few English girls choose to be maids nowadays is the poor chance for marriage in jobs where there is neither time nor place to meet or entertain a boy friend.

"Not only that, but the eligible young men of modern England reportedly look upon servant girls as beneath them."

League Badges
The dower idea is an old one. The latest suggestion would have government and employer contribute a few cents a week toward a $150 dowry which the servant, if she wishes to marry, would be entitled to after seven years.

The league of good household mistresses would be a voluntary organization open to all employers of servants who would accept a charter of good

Well-Groomed Man Has Eye on Detail

Don't Be Too Busy to Keep Yourself From Being Neat

By JOHN J. KELLY
AP Feature Service Writer

If you're a genius, a millionaire or a castaway on a palm-fringed isle you don't have to worry about your appearance. You can be as shabby as you please.

But if you're not an eccentric, a mugate or a ship-wrecked sailor you should have a decent concern for your dress and its condition. Your employer didn't engage you because you looked like a collar ad, but you can be sure that some of the best impression you made came from your spick-and-span appearance. Don't be too busy to keep yourself that way.

Here are a few suggestions to help you keep that well-groomed appearance:

Don't wear a suit two days in succession. Good materials return to their uncrumpled shape when they have a "rest," making for sound economy, by cutting pressing bills. Two suits worn alternately last more than three times as long as one worn day after day.

Avoid Tight Suits
Hang your suits on wooden clothes hangers. "Flare" thin wire affairs the tailor serves your clothes home on leave a crease across the trousers and permit the shoulders of the jacket to sag.

Don't get suits that fit too tightly. The strain takes all the "bounce" out of the material, shortens its life enormously.

If you're conspicuously stout don't buy clothes which dramatize your size. Vertical stripes on dark or medium-dark materials will give a slimming effect. Single-breasted suits are better for short, stout men than the double-breasted ones.

Hang your accessories. Men, once they get around to giving a few moments attention to color-blending in dress, discover they're just as good at it as their wives. Don't be afraid to experiment with colors.

Pay particular attention to the "V"

Bright Hurt; Camden Eliminates Hope 28-6

Ankle Injury Puts Star Quarterback Out of the Game

Bobcats Go Down Before Powerful Panthers at Camden

CAMDEN GOES OVER

Kizzia Shoots Pass to Meeks for Panthers' First Tally

CAMDEN, Ark.—The Hope High School football team was toppled from the undefeated ranks of the Arkansas Athletic Conference here Friday night before a powerful Camden team that played this game of football in head-to-head fashion for 60 minutes.

The Panthers were "hot" from the start, and once ahead, never slackened. The Panthers showed a big, potent team that played a slashing driving game that gave them victory, their first conference win of the season.

The score: Camden 28, Hope 6. Not only did the defeat remove Hope from the undefeated ranks, it was costly as Vasco Bright, Hope quarterback, was injured early in the second quarter and removed from the game. He did not return. He sustained an ankle injury.

Camden Scores

The Panthers scored in the first five minutes of play. Taking the ball on their own 40-yard line after an exchange of punts, the Panthers worked the ball down the field on a series of off-tackle plays. When they reached the 18-yard line, Kizzia of Camden flipped a pass to Meeks, right end, who took the ball near the sideline and ran the remaining distance.

Gillespie then kicked the first of four perfect placekicks.

The Bobcats received and Masters got away for a long run and brought the ball all the way to Camden's 45. After no gain an exchange of punts followed that left the ball on Camden's 45-yard line with the Bobcats in possession. Hope then drove to the 25-yard line, but Camden held and took possession.

Another exchange of punts followed that gave Hope the ball on its own 35. The Bobcats started a march that ended on Camden's 10-yard line. On fourth down, Bright got off a nice pass to Ramsey in the end zone, but Ramsey, in catching the ball, stepped out of bounds and the touchdown was nullified.

A few plays later, Bright was injured and removed from the game. Masters, who played an outstanding game for the Bobcats, intercepted a Camden pass and the Bobcats were on their way to their first touchdown.

Masters intercepted on Camden's 30 and then fired a pass to Ramsey who was brought down on the two-yard line.

Masters drove into the big Camden line to take the ball only two inches from the goal. He hit the same spot again and went over. An attempted line plunge for extra point failed.

The ball ended before either team could threaten again, Camden 7, Hope 6. The first downs in the first half, Hope 6, Camden 4.

Second Half
The second half is a different story. The Panthers, clicking like a well-oiled machine, ran over two touchdowns in the third quarter and kicked both goals. To start, Stone kicked off to Camden who were held for downs.

Starn, Camden quarterback, got off a beautiful 65-yard punt that rolled out of bounds on the Hope 3-yard line.

Ramsey then punted weakly to his own 25. Smith fired a pass to McKenna who took it on his shoe-strings and ran for touchdown.

Camden's third touchdown followed a few minutes later. A series of running and passing plays that was good for 40 yards left the ball on Hope's 8-yard line where Collins swept around its right end and across the goal line.

In the fourth quarter, Kizzia, Stern and McKenna carried the ball 45 yards, placing it on the four-yard stripe where Stern shot through the center of the line for touchdown.

Statistics gave Hope 7 first downs to 17 for the Panthers. Playing best for Camden were Stern, McKenna and Kizzia in the backfield and Goodgame, White and Meeks in the line.

For Hope, Noble Masters looked good in defeat. Bright played a good game until injured. Woodrow Parsons played a nice defensive game as did Hugh Reese and Percy Ramsey.

The Bobcats go to Blytheville next Friday night.

Halloween Don'ts Issued by Police

Destruction of Property Will Bring Arrests, Says Ridgill

Chief of Police John Ridgill, said Saturday that he wanted all Hope residents, both young and old, to enjoy their Halloween celebration but warned that destruction of property or other law violations would not be tolerated.

"I want every person to enjoy the evening to the utmost," the chief said, "but any one damaging or destroying property or otherwise violating the law will be brought to headquarters, and detected, there will be no exceptions to this order."

Every available member of the police force has been ordered to report for duty early this Saturday evening and will remain on duty until a late hour, the chief said.

Trusted Employee Gambles a Fortune

Prison and Disgrace Loom After Shortage of $86,400

NEW ORLEANS.—(AP)—The big New Orleans gambling casinos knew Friday that the mysterious Lefty, who came to the dice tables nightly with a roll of $100 bills, frequently half an inch thick, was a $240-a-month accountant who had embezzled $86,400 of his firm's money.

That announcement was made known by District Attorney Charles A. Byrne and Superintendent of Police George Evers after the arrest of William Kenneth Steppe, 36, accountant for the local office of W. R. Grace & Co., exporters. They said Steppe admitted taking the money over a period of several weeks, by a scheme in which he cashed checks made out to firms dealing with the export company.

Steppe told officers it all started two years ago when he accompanied friends, with whom he had dined and had a few drinks, to one of the gambling establishments. There, he said, he bought a few chips with his own money and rolled the dice for the first time in his life.

"And you lost?" he was asked.

"No," Steppe replied cheerfully. "I won."

Then, he kept going back to the tables, winning several hundred dollars before he began losing steadily.

Wages a War Against Confetti at Weddings

BOCKING, Essex, England.—(AP)—The Dean of Bocking, the Rev. Edgar Rogers, is waging war against confetti at weddings.

"Before a wedding, a deposit of five shillings must be paid," he said. "If no confetti is thrown, the deposit will be returned; if confetti is thrown, then so much of the deposit will be used as will pay for the tidying of the churchyard."

"Usually a pac kof empty-headed girls, who are not even guests, cause this wasteful litter. It must be stopped."

Oil Proration in Miller Delayed

Gov. Bailey to Ask State Board to Hold Up Final Action

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark.—Governor Bailey announced Friday night that he would ask the State Board of Conservation to hold in abeyance an order limiting oil production in the Rodessa field extension south of Texarkana "until all interested parties are given a chance to be heard."

The governor's announcement followed a conference with Will Steel, Texarkana lawyer, who reported that Miller county oil operators want an open hearing before the board to urge that the order be revoked.

The board has fixed a maximum daily production of 10,000 barrels a day for the Rodessa extension.

"I shall call the chairman of the board (O. C. Bailey of El Dorado) in the morning and ask that the order be held in abeyance until interested persons are given a chance to present their case," said the governor.

"Mr. Steel advised me that these operators wanted a chance to be heard and they are entitled to it."

The governor said he had received a letter from Robert C. Knox of El Dorado asking him to use his influence to get the proration order rescinded and declaring that Bailey had said in last summer's gubernatorial campaign that he was opposed to limiting production in new Arkansas oil fields.

"Mr. Knox wrote a very nice letter and clearly stated by attitude," Governor Bailey said.

"I have always taken the position that I did not want to see production bottled up in new Arkansas oil fields."

"I do not know what the stand of the Board of Conservation is upon this matter as I have not had a chance to confer with the members."

"This proration fight is all news to me. I have been out of the state on business for a few days and I return to find an oil war going on."

The governor emphasized that although the members of the board were appointed by him, he would not attempt to dictate to them.

Operators and citizens condemned the order at a Texarkana mass meeting and planned steps to combat proration in the courts if necessary.

Famous Chinese Force Withdraws to International City

PARIS, France.—(AP)—Highly qualified spokesmen for Japan and China revealed to the Associated Press Saturday that their countries are ready to discuss peace.

That hopeful element appeared in the Chinese-Japanese conflict, although the positions of the two countries on terms for ending the undeclared war are known to be widely separated.

By the Associated Press
Fresh complications from the Far Eastern war shunted the question of Spanish non-intervention into the background of international negotiations Saturday.

The deadlocked negotiators took a week-end recess at London, leaving Britain's ministers free to devote their attention to reports on the killing of three British soldiers Friday at Shanghai during Japanese shelling of Chinese positions there.

British police reported that China's famous "lost battalion" in devastated Chefoo was being down its arms and soon would come into the international settlement for sanctuary.

In another quarter of the globe, French colonial troops and the Moroccan courts in French Morocco joined in quelling native nationalist uprisings blamed by officials on agents of a "foreign totalitarian power."

Vonsiatsky Plots Against Soviets

Is Leader of National Russian Revolutionary Fascist Party

By The AP Feature Service
THOMPSON, Conn.—There's a fellow here who's hoping for war. But he has a stipulation. The war must involve Russia.

The fellow is Anastase Andreevitch Vonsiatsky and he's the king pin in a world plot to overthrow the Soviet regime.

When his war comes along, though, Vonsiatsky's not going to march on Russia with cannon. "Words," says he, "are tremendously more powerful than guns. We will send our army of propagandists, numbering into the high thousands, throughout Russia to spread the cause."

Not Afraid to Fight
And it's not because Vonsiatsky is afraid to fight the Russians. He is contemptuous of the military power of the Soviets.

"With 30,000 well trained troops," he says, "I could take Moscow like Grant took Richmond."

This man who expects to become Russia's Voild, a title corresponding to Der Fuehrer, is 39, a Russian count who renounced his title and became an American citizen. He's built like a athlete, keeps his hair close cropped and wears a semi-military uniform.

In 1921, in Paris, he met an American divorcee, Mrs. Marion Buckingham Ream Stephens, several years older than he. She was one of seven principal heirs to the $40,000,000 estate of her father, the late Norman B. Ream of Chicago. Vonsiatsky married her the next year in New York.

Revenge in Action
Soon after the wedding they settled here in Carolyn Hall, the large estate of Mrs. Vonsiatsky's mother. Thus this peaceful Connecticut countryside has become headquarters of his international scheming.

Vonsiatsky was a student in a Russian military school when the counter-revolution broke out. He rushed into the ranks of the White Russians. When they were defeated he fled to Constantinople, got to Marseilles by working as a stoker on a steamship. Then followed Paris and America.

By 1933, Vonsiatsky's desire for revenge on the Reds was put into action. He founded a Russian fascist movement. About the same time

Team Work Is Needed to Move a Heavy Load

OVERTURES toward peace between the Committee for Industrial Organization and the American Federation of Labor, however embryonic and ineffectual, arouse hope that America's prolonged labor conflict soon may be terminated.

As a pawn between two bitterly opposing forces, each striving for dominance, the workingman has been the real loser in the year-long conflict. With a bright era of industrial prosperity near, firm establishment of business upon a definite road to recovery has been impeding, if not blocked, by a turbulent labor situation.

A TEAM will never accomplish much if energy is wasted pulling against each other. Achievement is possible only when forces co-ordinate, in harmonious and united effort.

If a wagon bogs down in sand, two horses may lunge against their collars until exhausted, churning up a great flurry of dust without ever moving the load. But two lighter, better trained and disciplined animals can move the wagon with comparative ease, if they pull together.

IF THEIR avowed principles be fact, both the C. I. O. and the A. F. of L. are striving for the same goal, the improvement of laboring conditions and a just distribution of industrial profits. But in place of united action toward fulfillment of that aim, the past year has seen factional battles, fraught with violence, for the right to control.

Taking no sides in the controversy, the average individual can easily see the gigantic waste of effort that might have been put to better use. That there are convincing arguments for organization along the lines laid down by the C. I. O. is undoubtedly true. And equally admissible are the contentions of the A. F. of L. that the course of action it has pursued in organization is sound.

But there is no truth, no basis in fact or reason that one faction, and one alone should be supreme, dominant in every instance. If labor would reach the goals it has set for itself it will be necessary for the leaders of these two great organizations to sit down, in amiable conference, each granting concessions, each agreeing on "spheres of influence" and control. Only in this way can American labor achieve greatness.

Balancing the Books

NOT long ago there were wild rumors of a slaughter of Italians at Makal in Ethiopia. It would now appear that they were not true, or at least that they were exaggerated.

Yet even the rumor appears to have had some foundation. For Rome now officially announces that 102 Italian troops including 44 officers were killed in September by native attacks in the highlands of Ethiopia.

Official figures now give the Italian dead in Ethiopia as some 4000 soldiers and more than 1400 laborers. Strong groups of "bandits," the official reports state, were "literally destroyed." We know all about those "bandits" in the United States, having fought them in the Philippines and in Nicaragua with unhappy results.

When, if ever, the expected raw materials and metals start moving from Ethiopia to Italy, there will be a little item on the debit side of the ledger: 5400 Italian boys dead. How much cotton and gold and fruit will it take to make the ledger balance? That, one presumes, Mussolini himself will decide.

The 7:30 service will open with a season of great congregational singing. The pastor will preach.

Visitors are always welcome in our services.

formed by your collar line and coat lapels. This area, though relatively small, is most conspicuous. If it's "dressed properly," chances are you'll present a picture of good grooming. A neatly tied necktie of good material, of a color to blend or contrast with your suit can do wonders.

The Handkerchief

SYLVIA SUTTON, old heiress.

CHAPTER X

JILL hadn't been herself since the day the angry young man had come to her home. Mrs. Wentworth decided. But what was one angry young man with a city full of young men all ready to be agreeable?

She thought it might be a very good time to mention Milo's devotion, and discovered she was wrong.

"She's looking a wreck, for some reason," Mrs. Wentworth told Barry one day. "She'll end up by being an old maid."

"I guess she has a right to be one, if she wants to," Barry retorted.

"When—" Mrs. Wentworth ventured, realizing she was on forbidden ground, "when is Sylvia planning to announce her engagement?"

"Ask Sylvia," Barry said, knotting his tie viciously.

"I thought you said there was an understanding?" Mrs. Wentworth persisted.

"If you insist on knowing, the understanding seems to be going haywire. I suspect your big, blond stepson, Jack, is the reason. Really I don't much care—there are a dozen girls who are better company. And I know of one who makes Sylvia look like a piece of very pale cheese."

"Who?"

"Oh, skip it. Don't worry. I'll probably bring you Sylvia Sutton on a silver platter served with all her pedigree and social prestige."

MRS. WENTWORTH felt better. Evidently, Barry was still planning to marry Sylvia. But who was this other girl? If her plans didn't carry through for Barry's brilliant marriage, it would be a terrible disappointment. Then, there was the problem of Jill. It didn't matter whether Jill married brilliantly or not, just so she married.

Jill passed her stepmother with some letters in her hand. Jill, thought Mrs. Wentworth, always manages to be at home around mail time. She thought Jill looked excited.

Jill was. One of the letters in her hand was in a clear-cut masculine writing that was new. Even before she opened it, she knew it was from Alan.

She tore open the envelope. A check fluttered from the folded page. Alan had written: "I hope you will forgive me. I realize now you meant to be kind. But it was impossible for me to accept. However, there seems no way to escape obligation. Moving was evidently the right idea. I've sold several pictures which made it possible to send a check, closing the transaction. Sincerely, Alan."

Closing the transaction! He might just as well have said: Ending everything. He had asked forgiveness for hurting her, but he had not forgiven her. Which was the greatest hurt of all.

Mechanically, she opened another letter. It was from Ellen Beckwith inviting her for a visit.

For a long while Jill sat very still, holding the letters in her hand. One of them shutting the door to romance. The other opening the door to a temporary escape from life here at home—which had become in a moment a barren oasis. She would accept Ellen's invitation. There was nothing to wait for now.

SYLVIA SUTTON had come over to say goodbye to Jill.

Jill knew that her stepmother expected Sylvia to announce her engagement to Barry soon. But she was far from certain about it, herself.

There was none of the happy excitement about Sylvia that marked girls engaged to the men they loved. She was sure Sylvia was unhappy. Jack was not himself either. The two facts added up and made a complete conclusion.

Watching Jill assembling her wardrobe efficiently, Sylvia said: "You're simply wonderful Jill, I could never pack a trunk—or do anything, really."

"I think I'd make a swell poor man's wife," Jill said slowly, carefully placing a sky-blue evening gown on a padded silk hanger.

Something, Sylvia thought, had happened to Jill. She isn't the same. Jill was the grandest girl she knew. She'd hate for things to go wrong for her.

They went down stairs, and found Mrs. Wentworth waiting.

Impulsively, Sylvia put her arms about Jill and kissed her warmly. Jill looked so woe-begone and lonely. As though she didn't want to go and as though she didn't want to stay.

"Won't you go to the station with us, Sylvia?" Mrs. Wentworth asked eagerly.

"Thank you, so," Sylvia replied. "I must hurry home."

She started walking toward her coupe. Got in and turned on the ignition. As the occupants of the big car waved, Sylvia's hand went up gaily. A moment later the Wentworth car was lost around a curve of the drive.

Then, very calmly, Sylvia switched off the ignition and got out.

"Anything wrong, Miss Sylvia?" queried the gardener, coming toward her.

"No, Andrew, I was just thinking I would like to see your garden. Could you show me about?"

"GLADLY, Miss Sylvia. There's not much to see at this time of year. The chrysanthemums are fine. And there are some pretty things in the conservatory. Some tropical plants I'd like to show you."

It was while they were in the conservatory that Sylvia heard the car on the drive. It was too soon for Mrs. Wentworth to be back. If she were very lucky—

"Whose car is that?" she inquired, trying to make her voice sound casual.

"Mr. Jack's," answered the old man, absently.

"Andrew," said Sylvia, "will you tell Mr. Jack someone wants to see him here?"

"Certainly, miss."

Jack came striding into the conservatory, stopping abruptly when he saw Sylvia. His face went white.

"If the mountain won't come to Mahomet," began Sylvia. "I've been calling you worse names than a mountain. I've been calling you . . ."

"How could I come?" Jack's voice was low, tense and unhappy.

"You couldn't unless you cared as much as I do," Sylvia replied simply.

And then, suddenly, she was in his arms.

"It's no use, darling," Jack said unsteadily. "I can't give you up now. I tried. I had the feeling that you had planned to marry Barry, and would have, if I had not come along."

"I never would have gone through with it," Sylvia said. "I realized it long ago. Even before you came back from school. But you wouldn't notice me, wouldn't dance with me, rushed past me on the streets. This was the only way I knew."

She stopped talking. For the very good reason that it was impossible to talk and be effectively kissed at the same time.

A mocking voice reached them: "Smooth work, Jack. Everywhere I turn, I have evidence of your superior attainments."

Vonsiatsky Plots

other White Russian, M. K. V. Red-vaevski was doing the same thing across the world in Harbin, Manchukuo.

In 1934, at a tumultuous meeting in Harbin, the groups consolidated as the National Russian Revolutionary Fascist party and picked Vonsiatsky as Vojo.

A Different Swastika
The party emblem is the swastika. The Vojo wears it on his arm. But he indignantly denies any link with the Hitler brand of Fascism. The color schemes of the two emblems are different, he points out. He asserts his party has no anti-Semitic policy.

From his Connecticut stronghold—it has a gun room and is guarded by vicious police dogs—Vonsiatsky directs followers throughout the world. Harbin is a busy center of party activity. A department of ideology has been set up in Iran.

Sometimes Vonsiatsky picks odd ways to spread his doctrines. Recently he caught a dozen mud turtles and painted his Russian swastika on their shells. Then he turned them loose to carry the emblem through the peaceful woods.

conditions for maids. Each member would get a badge to display in her house, proving to prospective servants that the house was a good one to work in.

Badged houses would offer more leisure for maids, better living conditions and greater social comfort.

Domestic service, the labor minister finds, ranks at the very bottom of the girls' list of preferred jobs. They would even rather be factory workers than domestic. As a rule they earn only about $6.25 a week in the factory, compared to the $5-a-week average.

plus board and room. In a household job, factory girls have evenings, Saturday afternoon and Sundays free. As maids they would get only a half day off each week, with alternate half Sundays free.

Families Closing Houses
Then, too, a domestic often has to work in the country where movies are scarce.

Thousands of new industries—including the lighter work in the rearmament drive—are providing girls opportunities for jobs they didn't have in the old days.

Many English families have thrown up their hands and sold or shut down the large-old-fashioned houses which require a huge staff of servants.

Families are moving into modern flats which are springing up like mushrooms. In the smaller space of a flat Milady can do her own work, aided by modern household equipment and perhaps by a twice-a-week maid furnished by the management.

Kipling's Phrase Is Sacrificed for Peace

BROADSTAIRS, Kent, Eng.—(AP)—Lines from Kipling's "Recessional" are to be erased from a Lusitania raft on Broadstairs pier. The phrase "lest we forget" has offended foreign visitors and recently a man was fined for defacing them with paint.

"If this (erasing the lines) will take us one tiny little step towards peace, friendship and goodwill, we should do it," the town council stated.

Star Dust

By LEONARD ELLIS

Gone with the wind—that two-hits I had on the Bobcats. Shouldn't I have won so much money, anyway!

Like a race horse, the favorite doesn't always come in first. Sometimes it's a "longshot" that wins.

Us football "experts," as we are laughingly known, had our wires all crossed on that Hope-Camden tilt.

The Panthers have a powerful football team. And for the first time this season—we are told by Camden fans—were inspired when they took Hope's measure by a count of 28 to 6.

Had they played football against Fine Bluff and Little Rock like they did Hope, we are told the story would have been different. But we won't argue that case.

We admit defeat. We have no alibis.

The Panthers played a "bang-up" football game against Hope. They demonstrated it before approximately 3,500 fans. The line is big and potent. The ball-carriers drive with speed and determination. They were "hot" and just couldn't be stopped.

The Bobcats fought hard—but couldn't get started. In defeat, Noble Masters, Hope's right halfback, looked plenty good to us. After Bright was injured, Noble carried on nobly.

Masters has been the "dark horse" of the football team. He was turned loose against the Panthers and performed like a real war-horse. His passing was true and accurate, and his running was hard to stop. Look for even greater things from Masters.

The Camden and Hope bands, during the half, put on an exhibition second to none. Hope marched out first and was followed by Camden. Both bands deserve much credit for their performances.

The defeat by Camden, shouldn't discourage the Bobcats. If the team can get in physical shape by next Friday night it will be one more hard-fought game at Blytheville.

As most everyone knows, this is the fourth consecutive year that the Wonder Boys have walked through Arkansas competition without a defeat.

That's all for today.

Shirley Temple at Saenger Thursday

She Dances by Zuyder Zee in Her New Picture, "Heidi"

One of the most unusual sets ever built for a production was created for "Heidi." Shirley Temple's new starring picture opening Thursday at the Saenger, when a quarter-acre pond was filled with oil for a novel scenic effect.

The picturization of the famous story by Johanna Spyri, read and loved the world over, includes a specially written dream dance sequence featuring Shirley and twenty-six other young dancers in a colorfully picturesque Dutch scene.

The oil serves as the surface of the Zuyder Zee on a set reproducing the dykes, islands, windmills and canals about this famous Netherland harbor, acting as a perfect reflecting medium.

Every detail of the dance, which is done in wooden shoes, will be reflected in perfect perspective in the brilliant surface of oil, an interesting effect designed by Sammy Lee, dance stage.

Composers Lew Pollack and Sidney D. Mitchell wrote a new song especially for this number, called "In Our Little Wooden Shoes."

Ritz Brothers at the Saenger

It was in recognition of their rising wave of popularity that Darryl F. Zanuck, Twentieth Century-Fox production chief, decided to star the Ritz Brothers in their own right in "Life Begins in College," musical smash of fun, frenzy and excitement featuring Joan Davis, Tony Martin and Gloria Stuart and a notable cast, which opens Sunday at the Saenger Theater.

The Ritz Brothers, who came from Broadway to clown their way to stardom in the movie capital, were recently in "Sing Baby Sing," "On the Avenue," and "You Can't Have Everything." The decision came to star them after thousands of letters had poured into the studio from all parts of the country indicative of the increasing popularity of the comedians.

Included in the supporting cast of "Life Begins in College," are Fred Stone, Nat Pendleton, Ed Thorgeron, Dick Baldwin, Joan Marsh, Dixie Dunbar, Jed Prouty, Maurice Cass, Marjorie Weaver and J. C. Nugent.

"Trailing Trouble" Western at New

Ken Maynard and Tarzan in Western Feature This Saturday

Fast-moving and exciting, with a comedy touch here and there to ease the suspense, "Trailing Trouble," Saturday at the New theater with Ken Maynard and his famous horse, Tarzan, in the stellar roles. This is the second of the series of high class westerns, which the popular star is making for Grand National, produced by M. H. Hoffman under the Condor brand, the first of which was "Boots of Destiny," and Ken demonstrates again that he can ride and act with the best of them, while his personality carries the call of the great outdoors to his audience.

The story of "Trailing Trouble" starts with a stage-coach hold-up and keeps a fast pace throughout the entire production. The bandit gets away with Ken's new hat, and thereafter Ken is mistaken for him because of the swap of headgear. This mistake in identity is an aid to Ken on various occasions. He collects money for stray cows from a tough rancher, who thinks he is the desperate bandit, and helps in straightening out the range rights for the heroine, his boss, who owns the Bar X Ranch.

The fact that Ken is wearing the bandit's hat leads to all kinds of amusing and amazing incidents, for everywhere he goes he is mistaken for the notorious bad man. Even his pretty mistress, the heroine of the Bar X Ranch, takes a shot at him and sends him on a mission from which she believes he will come back full of bullet holes. But here the bandit's hat serves as a protection, and, instead, he brings her back the money for her lost steers, which she never had hoped to get.

Eventually, however, Ken's real identity is discovered and in the ensuing battle, Ken proves himself to be a better man than the much feared bandit, captures him and turns him over to the sheriff, besides getting back his much-prized hat.

The film is brimful of swift action and surprises and the many admirers of Ken Maynard and his equine pal, Tarzan, will find it screen fare that is 100 per cent entertainment.

Playing opposite Ken in the principal feminine role is Lona Andre, as Fatience Blair, owner of the Bar X Ranch and Ken's plucky, virtuous boss. Roger Williams plays the villain, Arthur Rossan directed "Trailing Trouble" from an original screenplay by Philip Graham White, and both deserve credit for a workmanly job.

Without missing NEW ORLEANS—Bill Mattis, Tulane halfback, lost 20½ pounds during the 57 minutes he played against Auburn.

He's Got What Is Called A "Real" Job

Between scenes of "Melody For Two," James Melton roams a few times for this glorious array of blondes, all of whom appear in the film as members of his girl swing band. "Melody For Two," the season's most lyrical, laughable lulu, comes to the New Theater, on Sunday and Monday.

James Melton, Singer, Drinks Hot Water Before Recording

Charley Foy, one of the sons of the late great Eddie Foy, boasts that one time when he was broke and couldn't get a vaudeville job he tap-danced for nine straight hours to win a $5 bet—and lived on the five-spot for a week.

James Melton, famous star of radio and screen, drinks a tall glass of hot water before recording a song.

Dick Percell is collecting the favorite jokes of all his movie-actor friends, and intends publishing them in a book to be called "Joe Miller in Hollywood."

Carlyle Moore, Jr., has appeared in four pictures during the last four months, and in each he plays the role of a radio announcer.

Patricia Ellis' real name is Patricia O'Brien—but she changed it when she came to work for Warner Bros. because there was already one Pat O'Brien on the lot.

Fred Keating, originator of the amazing disappearing bird and bird cage trick, and now a movie comedian has never been out of work for more than three days since he was 18 years old.

Patricia Ellis, at the age of twenty, has the astonishing record of having played thirty-six feature roles in motion pictures, in addition to having appeared in several stage productions.

James Melton recently treated his father, J. V. Melton, to a trip around the world.

Harry Warren and Al Dubin, songwriters who did several of the songs for "Melody For Two," have just completed their 100th song together.

The fifteen girls who compose the all-female orchestra in "Melody For Two" dyed their hair blonde overnight for their roles in the picture.

Halloween

Without the dark, like folds of crepe flits every star from sight, For ghostly form and goblin shape Are all abroad tonight; The bitter winds in fury howl Like tortured souls unseen. As imps and fiends and witches prawl Without on Halloween. Within, how warm the fires glow And jack-o-lanterns shine, What happy songs and laughter flow As golden as wine: For all the spirits hiding here Are those of what-has-been. Of age-old-love and fun and cheer Within on Halloween. — From an old scrap book.

Again we would like to remind you that Saturday night when ghosts and goblins howl, and you make merry observing a Halloween that is brought forward one day, this year on account of the 31st falling on Sunday—Do not have your fun and make merry at the expense of your neighbor.

Will Rogers Film in Return Showing

"Handy Andy" at the Rialto Wednesday and Thursday

The Mardi Gras at New Orleans forms the rich and merry background for the outstanding scenes of hilarity responsible for the great popular demand which has brought back Will Rogers in "Handy Andy" to the Rialto Wednesday and Thursday.

The Twentieth Century-Fox picture is acclaimed as the funniest the famous comedian ever made; the sequence wherein Rogers masquerades as "Tarzan of the Apes" at the Mardi Gras Ball and executes a wild adagio dance with a little French girl rivals the peak of his comedy.
